

THE CONTRIBUTORS

Benito Lim is associate professor of Asian Studies and Communications at the Asian Center and College of Mass Communications, University of the Philippines. He has served as consultant on political and economic affairs at the Philippine Embassy in Beijing (1976) and in the Ministry of Foreign Affairs (1977-1980) as well as with the Philippine Center for Advanced Studies and the President's Center for Advanced Studies (1974-1986).

Aleen S. P. Baviera is the head of the Institute for International Relations and Strategic Studies of the Foreign Service Institute, Department of Foreign Affairs. She was formerly the research and publications coordinator of the Philippine-China Development Resource Center, and editor-in-chief of its quarterly publication, China Currents. She is finishing her doctorate in Political Science at the University of the Philippines, where she also had her M.A. in Asian Studies, specializing in China.

Theresa C. Cariño is the executive director of the Philippine-China Development Resource Center. She was the first director of the China Studies Program at De La Salle University in Manila and co-founder of the Philippine Association for Chinese Studies. She has written and edited several books on China and the Chinese, among them China and the Overseas Chinese in Southeast Asia (1985); Chinese in the Philippines (1985); Social Change and Southeast Asian Chinese Literature (1989); China-ASEAN Relations (1991); and Black Cat, White Cat: Reform and Revolution in China (1993).

Segundo E. Romero Jr. is associate professor of Political Science at the University of the Philippines. He is also vice-president of the Institute for Strategic and Development Studies, a non-government organization. Dr. Romero holds a Ph.D. in Political Science from the University of the Philippines, and had a number of visiting scholarships in several universities in the United States.

Julius Caesar Parreñas is director of the Institute for International and Strategic Studies of the Center for Research and Communication and associate professor of its Graduate School and College of Arts and Sciences. He has a Ph.D. in Political Economy from the Ludwig Maximilian University in Munich.

Willy L. Laohoo is information service bureau chief of the Philippine-China Development Resource Center. He graduated cum laude (Gold Medal for Excellence in Political Science) at the De La Salle University in 1989, with a degree in Political Science. He has written about China for publications such as China Currents, The Korean Journal of International Studies (Seoul), and Asian Thought and Society (New York).

Bernardita Reyes Churchill is professorial lecturer of the Department of History of the University of the Philippines and head of the Chinese Studies Program of the De La Salle University. She has written several papers on China and Philippine history, and has edited the following books: An Assessment: Philippine-China Relations, 1975-1988; Teodoro A. Agoncillo's History of the Filipino People; eighth edition (1990); Manila Studies Paper; and the Encyclopedia of the Discipline of History in the Philippines.